In twenty-five years, according to a report made to the National Agricultural Society at St. Louis, all the valuable accessible timber lands in the United States will have been despoiled.

The wheat crop, in New England, is up to the average; in the Middle States, has fallen 35 per cent; has risen, in the Southern States, from Virginia to Tennessee, 50 per cent; aud in California, 75 per cent. For the country at large there has been an increase of 5 per cent, and an average yield of twelve or thirteen bushels to

The effect of the combination among the oil-producers to restrict the production of oil is shown by the statement of the Titusville Herald, that the oil production for Sertember shows a decrease, compared with the month of August, of 2,258 barrels daily. The Courier, however, says the decrease is only 870. The daily production in August was 18,816 barrels. The total amout of stock was 877,739 barrels, a decrease in stock during the month of 52,721 barre's. The total shipments during September were 590,375 barrels, a decrease of 73,893 barrels.

A Rochester New York dispatch says that the horse disease is on the increase. There are few horses in the city that are not affected. The street railway company have suspended operations, all their horses being sick. The livery stables and express companies are also suspended. There is hardly a horse to seen on the street, and not a farmers's team in sight.

In the trial of Chief of Police McWilliam in Jersey City, for complicity in the bank robbery, Chas. J. Proctor testified: I first became acquainted with McWilliams at the Metropolitan Hotel. We talked about the protection he was to give me in the bank robbery. He gave me a part of the mouey with which I paid the rent of the rooms next to the bank. He then corroborated the testimony of Dernan as to the particuars of the arrangement with McWilliams. The trial is still progresng.

SHADOW LAND. BY LIDE MERRIWETHER.

' Shadows we are, and shadows we pursue. O'er the distant mountains drooping
Pearl and gray the curtains fall,
Misty shapes come through them troo
To the sounding autumn call;
Hushed and still, the forest listen
To the footfalls of the band, And their garments gleam and glisten With hues of Shadow Land.

Soft their fairy feet are creeping
O'er the maple, beech and pine
Bright-hued elfin shapes lie sleeping
In the sumac, oak and vine;
Arch on arch, like rainbows meeting
Tower the forest giants grand,
Warm and glowing, fair and fleeting
As the dreams of Shadow Land. Rainbow wings are softly flitting Through the deep entangled wood,
Ghostly shadows silent sitting
In its twilightsolitude;
Fairy echoes sweet are ringing
From the river's gleaming strand
As the elves are softly singing
Syren songs of Shadow Land.

Rus'ling wings above me hover, Whispering echoes to me call.
Elfin hands my cyclids cover.
Fairy footsters round me fall;
Ghostly shapes are dimly falling
Through the wood with beckoning hand.
And their spirits voices calling
To their home in Shadow Land.

Sottly sweep the nut-brown tresses, Sweet and balmy floats the breath,
Warmand glowing press the kisses
Of the autumn's crimson mouth;
Gleaming round me—floating o'er m
Troop the dreamy, wooing band—
Earth and heaven fade before me, And I dwell in Shadow Land.

Through the meadows, blossom laden
In the rosy blushing dawn
Trips a blue eyed laughing maiden
Singing to the glad May morn;
Fairy ningas, ear her rising. Fairy pinions o'er her rising,
Fairy sponsors round her stand,
With the morning dews baptizing—
Daughter of the Shadow Land.

O'er her white gleaming bosom O'er her white gleaming bosom
Course the glowing veins of youth,
All the sweets of bud and blossom
Dwell within her rosy mouth,
Dream-eyel passion's dusky tresses,
Lie beneath her snowy hand,
And he wafts his burning ki

And beside him, proud ambition,
Regal head and eye of fire,
With the dreams of his creation
Wooing onward—upward—higher—
Till the "brave dead years" shall reckon
On their record, none so grand;
Still their maddening fingers beckon
Unward, into Shadow Land.

But behind them slowly creeping Steal the wan and ghostly nears, All their beams in shadows steeping, All blossoms drowned in tears; And the gleaming wings that hovered Bleaching lie on the burng sand. And the darkling stream is covered With the wrecks of Shadow Land

Dust and darkness dimly cover.

Buried friendship's broken vow,
Dusky pinions hover over
Trusts betrayed and lying low;
Records of the "old, old story"
Scyttered with relentless hand,
Dreams of love, and pride, and glory,
Sleeping cold in Shadow Land. Little foot no longer patter O'er the lowly cottage floor,

Rosy lips no longer chattor,
Liquid brown eyes smile no more.
Memory swinging gate discloses
Angels of the household band,
Sleeping under the snow-whits roses
Dwellers pale in the Shadow Land. And as memories circle o'er me, and their darkling shadows teem, Oft the queries press me sorely, Do I wake? or do I dream? What is shadow? what is human?

Which, the worn and wearied woman? Shall a life be ours, where never Shall the soul unanswered call! Where the real liveth ever, And the shalows from us fall? Shall the spirit soaring higher, Circled by a shining band. Bathed in God's own sun bright fit
